I went to the Zoopermarket

This week we will be looking at the book “I went to the Zoopermarket” by Nick Sharratt. This book can be viewed on You tube. I have listed lots of activities that you can do with your children and have included resources. Please feel free to explore this topic.

- Talk about the book together, who is there favourite character and why?
- Which food would they eat? Is the lion too scary, will the crocodile snap if you take a chocolate drop?
- Look in your food cupboards, what animals could they be?
- Maybe use food to make an animal. A duck made of crackers. A toad made of tomato ketchup, a spaghetti yeti, please use your imagination.
- Make a pretend shop with tins and packets. Ask the children to label prices, and use real coins to count out the correct amount.
- Role playing shop is a great way to promote conversation, use imagination and work on counting skills. (I have included a template for price tags in resources)
- Make signs for your shop, prices, open, closed or special offers etc.
- Use real 1p coins to count out amounts, if your child is doing well introduce 2p and add these. (I have included a resources sheet on money maths)
- The book mentions crisps, ice-cream and yoghurt. Can the children blind test some of the different flavours and guess which flavour it is. You can do this as a family and rate each flavour to find the top 3.
- Come Outside has an episode called crisps on You tube, showing how they are made.
- If you are visiting the shops, please let your child take an active part in this. Help write a shopping list, counting items such as fruit into your basket, looking at prices and talking about the visit.
- Please feel free to look at other books written by Nick Sharratt and books about shopping. Look at how they are similar or different. Which book do they like best?
